

Melanin Matters

Screening of “Skin Talk” by Beverly Naya

Wednesday October 30th, 6 pm

Goethe-Institut Nigeria

7 Anifowoshe Street VI Lagos, Nigeria

When parenting meets purpose: How has colorism affected the way you raise your children?

How do you teach your children to embrace their skin and skin tone? Find out from Beverly Naya and distinguished guests in this screening of a thought-provoking talk show.

At this highly anticipated screening event, we will show Beverly Naya’s “Skin Talk” episode on Parenting.

Beverly Naya will introduce her "Skin Talk" docu-series in a discussion with Marion Grimberg (Mainz, Germany). "Skin Talk" by Beverly Naya is a short series of talk shows.

Each Episode features prominent guests sharing their thoughts and experiences on the privileging of lighter skin tones in Nigeria, also called colorism.

The episode about parenting asks how colorism has affected the way the round table guests raise their children. How do they teach their children to love their skin regardless of their skin tone? The speakers also share their personal experiences with discrimination based on skin tone.

The episode features actor and creative entrepreneur Deyemi Okanlawon, media entrepreneur and educationist Isabella Adediji, fashion designer and visual artist Elizabeth John and actor, singer and entrepreneur Tope “Teddy A” Adenibuyan.

After the screening, Beverly Naya will be available for a Q&A with the audience. Don’t miss this exciting opportunity to see “Skin Talk”, which is the follow up project of the popular “Skin” documentary.
